Search Engine Optimization (SEO) is a complicated but essential strategy for your business to utilize. SEO is a free tactic used to influence search engine results that helps an individual find relevant content based on a keyword or phrase.

Why is SEO important? A lot of website traffic stems from search engine results. While it is essential for your business to stay relevant in your industry, it is also important to remain relevant to consumers. You can accomplish this by appearing in consumers' searches.

Here are 5 tips to begin implementing SEO tactics:

Do your keyword research. Outline the key messages for your site, research the search demand landscape and create a list of keywords and phrases that resonates with your target audience.

Structure your content accordingly. Once you know more about prominently searched keywords that relate to your business, consistently use those keywords in your blogs and throughout your site.

Maintain satisfying content. When developing content, it's important to first write for your target audience, and then consider search engines' algorithms. Your target audience will stay on your page longer if they are reading enjoyable, relevant content.

Identify any broken links on your website. That annoying error code "404 file not found" webpage is bad for your website and SEO. Search engines might assume your website is not well-maintained or a spam site if there are broken links and will hurt the site's authority.

Link your pages internally. Once a user is on your website, you want them to stay there. Providing inbound links throughout your website content allows users to interact with related content and will lead to a lower bounce-rate for your site.

SEO is a marathon, not a sprint. Successful SEO tactics can be implemented in a few simple, easy steps, however, results take time. You will need to keep your website up-to-date to stay relevant in today's searches. These SEO tactics will help increase your company's chance of appearing on the first page of search engine results and bringing potential customers to the website.
